

Victoria Park Pavilion

Hackney London

Value: £600k

Client: London Borough of Tower Hamlets

Programme: 20 weeks

Description: New Build

Lengard were delighted to build a new pavilion and café in Victoria Park, Hackney, complementing the Victorian origins of the park.

London has thousands of years of history and it was no surprise therefore that the ground works were not straight forward: firstly, the area power supply cable went right through the middle of the foundations; and secondly, we discovered a Black Death burial pit!

After the all clear from the Infection Diseases Institute, the solution was vibro-piling to consolidate the ground and support the 12-sided structure.
